

"Lookin' Back 25 Years"

—Muses Old Man Winter

"In the old days I used to blow in with considerable more pepper than I seem to have these days—my icy breath seemed a lot more penetrating. My friends of the old days still insist that I was a far more severe visitor then than I am now."

"Some of 'em will tell you the climate's changed; but if you listen to me, I'll tell you that it's Castle Gate and Clear Creek Coals that are makin' it harder every year for me to get folks to take notice of me."

TURKEY TO BE HIGH; SUPPLY REPORTED LOW

Chicken, geese, sucking pigs and even the less expensive meat cuts will displace turkey in many homes this Thanksgiving, it is indicated in reports from the markets of Ogden.

King Turkey seems to have abdicated and the birds are scarcer than bottled in bond. There seems to have been an almost total failure in the turkey hatch this season, so far as the local market is concerned, and while the cadavers of long deceased birds, whose flesh and bones have been kept intact through cold storage, will be plentiful, the fresh Turkeys are few and far between.

In a survey of Ogden markets yesterday, at least two turkeys were available. They were offered for sale at 50 cents per pound, and a clerk stated that the prices were expected to be higher before Thanksgiving. The pair of turkeys on display were scrawny looking birds that gave the impression that they had been throttled before their prime.

Word from the Ogden Packing and Provision company is that there is little prospect of that company having a supply of turkeys this season. No offers have been made by farmers so far, it is said, who in other years have disposed of their turkey crop to the local concern.

HE STOPS WHEN STRANGER HAILS; GETS BIFF ON JAW

Aaron Ross, employee of the Ogden Baking Company, says he is done with picking up strangers in his automobile to give them a lift into town. Ross, who lives in the city, was coming to work Monday morning when a man ran from the sidewalk and hailed him. Supposing that the stranger wanted a ride, Ross stopped his machine.

"Could you see your way clear to loan a fellow half a dollar," the stranger asked, as Ross machine stopped.

Ross, somewhat indignant over the affair, suggested a warmer climate for the man, and is also said to have made some remarks which included "beggar" or words to that effect.

The mendicant drew back a bawny right and parried Ross nearly on the point of the chin. Then, before Ross could gather his wits together and retaliate, the "moocher" swiftly removed himself from the scene.

So Ross turns a deaf ear to persons who hail him. His chin is still tender.

A. A. MIXES WITH FRESHMEN STARS IN ARMISTICE GAME

The flashy Ogden A. A. gridders are scheduled to mix with the fast Utah Freshmen aggregation at LaPort, Va. today in one of the features of the Armistice day celebration being conducted by the local organization.

Thus far this season the Freshmen team has been undefeated and from all indications they will be in the fray from the top of the gong today. Although Coach Tillie Olson has three regulars crippled, he is confident of victory.

The locals will present the best lineup of stars they have shown to the fans this season. They are confident of victory and expect to send the Salt Lake home with the small end of the score.

Idaho Ranchers Are Sued for Trespass

Suit against eight Idaho ranchers, charging them with trespassing on the Payette forest in Idaho, has been started by United States District Attorney J. L. McClear, according to advices reaching local forest service headquarters. The defendants named in the action include Edward Martin, J. C. Conyers, W. S. Conyers, Ashton Kelland, E. L. Jones, W. J. Carrigan, J. H. Johnson and J. Kelland.

The men are alleged to have located on lands which were withdrawn from entry in 1890 and have established homes and raised crops without having the authority.

The land in question was originally in the Sawtooth forest, but was later included as a portion of the Payette forest.

State's Certificates for Soldiers Ready

Certificates for Weber County veterans of the World war were mailed from the office of Governor Simon Bamberger this morning. American Legion post will receive the certificates which mark the final numbers of the 18,000 certificates forwarded to Utah service men.

While Utah had more than 24,000 men in service, records regarding but 18,500 have been furnished by the American Legion posts.

The certificates already mailed will pay an important part in the observance of Armistice day throughout the state. It is reported.

IN HIS FIRST SEVEN-REEL FEATURE DRAMA

'The Round-up'

Not a slapstick comedy, but a real feature drama with Arbuckle as the star.

Roscoe Arbuckle, for many years the premier comedian of the screen in Paramount Arbuckle comedies, will be seen at this theatre next Sunday in his first Paramount feature picture, "The Round Up," a picturization of Edmund Day's famous stage play, directed by George Melford. Humor, pathos and tragedy are charmingly combined in this great Western production. Mabel Julienne Scott heads a highly capable supporting company of players.
